Coates, Cambridgeshire: 1911 Census Analysis

by Colin Ashworth (December 2020)

The area covered by this analysis of the 1911 census is, I believe, much larger than the area covered in my earlier census studies of Coates. In the 1911 census, Coates itself is enclosed within the District 10 boundaries but many of the entries from Districts 9 and 11 contained names I recognised and established families were often listed as being in Coates or the Coates area, so I have included them. I have tried not to include people who actually lived in Eastrea itself and so not everyone from District 9 has been counted in my analysis. Districts 9, 10 and 11 are all part of Whittlesey Rural, Holy Trinity (Part of) and are described as detailed below (from the census books) and it is these descriptions which have guided me when drawing the map which appears later.

Some of the reference points in the descriptions could not be found. For example Highway is mentioned but not marked on a modern map. Nor is Milestone (I assume this was a milestone!) or Stamp Fen Drove. Those I could not find are in italics. I also had to assume where District 9 followed Cow Way and I was not sure if "the boundary of Holy Trinity Coates" meant the boundary of the church grounds or some other defining point: I have placed a possible boundary between Districts 9 & 10. Also, the Parish boundary on the East (with that of March/Wisbech) may have changed since 1911, but probably not markedly so. Essentially, for a personal study, I am reasonably content with my map which shows the three registration districts.

The District Map - next page

The map shows the Coates area based loosely upon Coates as it is now. In 1911 it would not have extended so far south so the District 10 boundary would have enclosed the entire hamlet.

| So, the included population, based upon the        |  |  |

| three districts which I have taken to count as     |  |  |
| Coates, (for my purposed) yields the statistics on |  |  |
| the right.   |  |  |

It turns out that the population aged 19 and over was 612 whilst under 19s numbered 470. I have taken 19 as a dividing age since the youngest married people were aged 19. I could have taken 21 as the age when it was deemed adulthood began (age of majority) but decided not to do so.
